Description

Nestled in the heart of the magnificent Sicilian countryside, a short distance from the sea and the Valley of the Temples in Agrigento, stands a historic villa. Set amidst bucolic scenery, this peaceful oasis offers an incomparable sensory experience for nature lovers in search of a restorative stay within the embrace of the natural environment.

The residence is located in Aragona, a rural location near the Macalube Nature Reserve and just 17 kilometers from the Valley of the Temples in Agrigento, an expression among the most iconic of Greek classical art and architecture, a source of inspiration for countless artists, poets, philosophers, and painters.

Villa Kerkent is a green haven that contributes to making a stay perfect in complete harmony with nature; the villa is enveloped by lush countryside, leading to a refreshing swimming pool and a "gebbia," an ancient water reservoir now transformed into a pool for aromatic baths enriched with orange blossom, lavender, rosemary, and rose petals. Both pools are equipped with saltwater systems and the "gebbia" is also heated from April 1st to November 1st.

The villa's interiors have been meticulously restored and furnished with a balance of traditional and contemporary styles, ensuring guests a welcoming and relaxing stay. The ground floor features a library, communal spaces, and a fully equipped kitchen, ideal for both preparing and consuming meals. The old stables and the mill have been converted into a wellness center that utilizes medicinal herbs and local products to create essences and oils.

This villa welcomes its guests with old-time hospitality, offering a renovated and carefully appointed refuge for those who value the benefits of outdoor life. With a front courtyard and a two-story structure that embraces an inner courtyard, ecological solutions such as solar panels, appliances with the highest energy rating currently available, a rainwater collection tank, and fixtures in sustainable wood ensure zero carbon dioxide emissions.
